

In view of the escalating spread of the COVID-19 pandemic and the impact on the Singapore and global economy, the Singapore Government has decided to act swiftly by announcing the Supplementary Budget 2020 (also known as the Resilience Budget) in less than 6 weeks after the Singapore Budget 2020 announcement. Additional measures were introduced with enhancement made to some of the support rolled out previously. This could not be timelier and can definitely put Singapore businesses in a better position to sustain their operations, overcome the challenges and strengthen themselves for the recovery once the storm is over.

CHARTING THE WAY FORWARD

While the current crisis is unparalleled and unprecedented moves have to be taken to deal with the global pandemic, each crisis also presents an opportunity for businesses. With the push in the recent years by the Government for Singapore to be a smart nation, the current downturn may be a good time for businesses to rethink their current strategies and mode of operations to be in a position to avail themselves of all the measures and enhancements announced. Therefore, times like this may well be the catalyst for businesses to start evolving.
