

UNITY. RESILIENCE. SOLIDARITY

Deputy Prime Minister (“DPM”) and Minister for Finance, Mr Heng Swee Keat, announced the Solidarity Budget earlier today whereby additional support for businesses and households were unveiled less than two weeks after the Resilience Budget. This brings the total budget set aside to buffer the impact of COVID-19 to S$59.9 billion (S$6.4 billion from Unity Budget, S$48.4 billion from Resilience Budget and S$5.1 billion from Solidarity Budget), which is necessary to help businesses stay afloat and keep their employees during the ‘circuit breaker’ period so that businesses can resume normal operations once the measures are relaxed. The constantly fast evolving COVID-19 situation since the announcement of the Resilience Budget requires the Singapore Government to act decisively and swiftly so the Solidarity Budget should not come as a surprise to most businesses and individuals. In case you missed the announcement earlier today, please refer to the snapshot below for the additional support that are rolled out.

- Ensure that rebate is passed to tenants in a timely manner according to prescribed timeline.
- Prohibit property owners from imposing conditions when passing on the PTR.
